C.W.WARD TALKS TO FARMERS

PAPER READ AT HUMBOLDT COUNTY FARM BUREAU MEETING.

The Farm a Factory or Farming a Species of Manufacturing.

(The following is a copy of a paper ead before a meeting of the Humbold colory tarm bureau, at Eureka, Cal. let. 12, by Charles Williard Ward.)

Most people when they think of armer picture him as growing things; their conception of his vocation is that he sticks some seeds in the ground, hangs around the barns nights and mornings, milks a few cows, makes a little hay, digs a few potatoes and drives the wagon to market and sells what the Lord is pleased to present him with. Few people, even few far-mers, appreciate that the commercial growing of farm products is one of the most intricate species of manufacturing known. Very few people look upon the farm as a factory, but it is noue the less true that a man who owns a piece of land owns a manufac turing potentiality, the value of which depends entirely upon the kind of a factory which he makes out of it. The ownership of a building with the machinery with which to make boots and hoes does not make a boot and shoe manufacturer out of the owner; he must also have the ability and energy and that we could look for him here nd the necessary capital with which poots and shoes at a cost basis and of quality that will compete with other annfacturers in the same line.

Now the same is true of the farmer The possession of a piece of land, use that land and produce crops from upon a basis of cost and in commercial quantities that will enable the owner to live, to pay his taxes, support his family, educate his children, from year to year is what makes him successful farmer and there is no use in being a farmer unless you can e a successful one. In the early history of this country he white man found a virgin soil of exceeding richness in most parts of what is today called the farming sec- millinery camp in the United States. ion of the United States. The maority of this land was covered with a rich and valuable growth of timber which had to be removed at considerble expense before the land could be prairie region just west of the Mississippi and more or less of it lying south ited extent in southern Michigan needed nothing but plowing and cultivation to produce most abundant crops In those days all the farmer had to do My dear Mr. McRae: was to plow the ground, sow the grain less farmer was developed, men who were reckless of the capital wrapped up on their soil in the way of plant friends to support such a clean, honor food and good mechanical condition able and capable man. for culture, all contributing to exceedcumulated around their stables were thrown out upon the ground to rot and waste. There was no thot of putting augthing back into the soil. From the fact that for four or five years nature continued to produce bountifully, the farmers of those days that tha they had in their lands inexhaustible bank accounts. Some of them were prudent enough to save money and invest it in bank stocks and mortga ges, but most of them wasted their profits in machinery which was used a few times and left in the field to rust and decay. Such a thing as pro viding tool sheds, barns and storage sheds for tools and crops was not con sidered of great importance; the bull of the fodder crops were held in stacks exposed to the weather and their value for feeding purposes oftimes largely destroyed. But in a few years the rich farm began to produce poor crops and now and then there was a crop failure. The farmers were overdraw

ing their accounts. This rather aptly describes the old style of so-called farmer, the type urge those friends who supported me which is now beginning to pass away. The name of the farmer who today thinks he is going to continue the old type of farming will not be heard of within a few generations. A new era in farm management is now developing. Taking the proposition that the farm is a factory, it then follows that be triumphantly elected. the machinery to run that factory is of as much importance as the machinery in the shoe factory is for the man

When it comes to farm managemen the best and most thoro machinery for cultivation is none too good. Of course it costs money-considerable capital. So does the boot and shoe machinery cost money but the boot and shoe manufacturer takes care of is machinery and does not allow it to be exposed to the weather and destroyed. So the modern farmer must for while it is true that Mr. Caple is follow the example of the other manuactures; he must invest capital in

CURRIE COMING TO GRAYLING. Will Speak in Opera House, November 3,

Since the primary election in Au gust, Gilbert A. Currie, our candidate for congress, has been very busy. The state campaign committee has had Mr. Currie out giving campaign speeches and therefore the time to devote to his friends has been limited.

Mr. Currie said that he positively yould come to Crawford county at least to thank in person his many friends and supporters who gave him such a arge vote in the primary election. He said he wanted to get better acquainted with the people here and wanted to meet them when he could talk to them from the platform.

In a letter received from Mr. Currie few days ago he said that he would have Friday, Nov. 3rd, an open date that afternoon and that he would speak o carry on the business of producing in the evening. The Opera house has been rented for the occasion.

He was anxious to be in Frederic and other places also but had to give up the idea because of lack of time. The people of Crawford county are whether fertile or unfertile, does not just as anxious to meet and hear Mr. nake a farmer of the owner. It is Currie as he is to get here, and we none the less a fact that the ability to trust that there will be as large a crowd present as can possibly come. Should the weather be fair, we hope that as many as possible of our farmers and other friends from outside of Grayling will try and come to Grayand improve the value of his property ling and get acquainted with the nex ongressman of the Tenth district.

Mr. Currie has already done much for Crawford county for it was thru his determination for fair play that the State legislature of 1913, of which he was then speaker of the house, established within our borders the finest

My dear Mr. McRae:-I have your favor of 12th and note that you are dvised of the efforts being put forth by Mr. Caple [Democrat nomineel to win the election as Senator from this district. I am quite sure however, that you have no cause to fear defeat, making an unusually active campaign, yet I have no information or knowledge that he will receive anything more than his party vote. I have always that that you conducted a clean orimary campaign and won the nomnation fairly and do not believe that there is any good reason why you should not receive the full republican vote. With best wishes and kind personal regards, I am,

Sincerely yours, J. M. Perry.

Aside from the operations in Dobrudja, another British smash at the German line in the Somme region of France, which netted them more than a thousand yards of trenches east of Gueudecourt and Lesboeufs and carried their front a step nearer the Bapaume-Peronne road, is the most notable incident of the fight ing on any of the fronts. A gain described by Paris as "appreciable," also is recorded for the French north east of Morval, which lies just to the south of the region where the British and Germans were in contact.

Berlin, in touching upon the fighting against the British and French Sunday between Le Sars and Rancourt, says the attacks of the Entente Allies were sanguinarily repulsed. It is admitted in the German official communication that the Germans withdrew Sunday night from the north of Caulnes, south of the Somme, to a prepared position lying east of the orthern part of the Caulnes wood.

On the Transylvania front stubborn fighting is still in progress between the Teutonic Allies and the Rumanians for the mountain passes and the territory inside Rumania which has been captured by the Austro-Germans.

FIFTY-ONE LIVES LOST IN BIG STORM

STEAMER MERIDA ADDED TO THE LIST OF BOATS THAT FOUNDERED IN LAKE.

FIND SEVEN BODIES IN LAKE

Colgate Foundered in Lake Eric With Crew of Twenty-two; Captain Rescued.

Detroit.-With the loss of the steamer Merida in Friday night's gale on Lake Erie conceeded by officials of the Valley Camp Shipping company of Midland, Ont., her owners, the death toll of the storm in which four vessels sank, reached 51 men. Proof that the Merida had gone down came when seven bodies wearing lifebelts stamped "Merida" were picked up in mid-lake by two other ships. Her entire crew of 23 men is believed to have perished.

Another name was added to the death list when it became known that Walter J. Tedo. of Redwood, N. Y. had been washed from the deck of the barge Isaac L. Bell in Friday's storm. The Bell, bound down in tow of the steamer S. J. Murphy, was at anchor at Bar Point, not far from where the D. L. Filer went down. With the loss of 23 lives on the Merida, that of Tedo, 21 on the James Colgate, and six on the Filer, the death list reached 51. Only 10 bodies of "Black Friday's" lake victims have been recovered. The revenue cutter Morrill left Cleveland to search the lake for bodies.

Twenty-One Lives Lost.

Cleveland.—Another tragedy. Lake Erie's "Black Friday," cost the lives of 21 men, came to light Sunday, borne on the waves, when a life raft to which Captain Grashaw, master of whaleback steamer James B. Colgate had clung since she foundered, 34 hours before, was picked up off Ron deau, Canada, and taken to Conneaut, Ohio.

to death when the Colgate foundered off Long Point, opposite Eric and Captain Grashaw's two companions on the life raft were washed away just as the rescue ship, car ferry steamer Marquette and Bessemer No. 2, came plowing through the waves toward them. Grashaw is the solesurvivor of the Colgate's crew of 22

The loss of the Colgate is the most conspicuous of the year, the next being the steamer S. R. Kirby, which sank in Lake Superior with 19 men May 8.

Captain Rescued.

Detroit.-Six lives, two ships went out in the 50 mile gale from the southwest that swept over Lake Erie beating the sea into a fuming, raging mass of destructiveness.

"I heard the screams of my crew as they were dashed into the water. It sent a chill through me. I wanted to save them, but what could I do?" Thus Capt. John Mattison, master of the schooner D. L. Filer, which was sunk off Bar Point, near the mouth of the Detroit river, described his plight during the gale that swept Lake Erie and in which two ships foundered, with a loss of six lives all from the Filer.

Capt. Mattison, rescued only after he had clung 12 hours to a spar that was part of the wreckage of his illfated craft, was worn to a point o total exhaustion when he was brought to Cleveland by the D. & C. steamer Western States, but he gave a gra-phic account of his experience.

Thirteen others were rescued from the vengeance of the storm. were members of the crew of the steamer Marshall F. Butters, which foundered on Southeast Shoals. Three er Frank Billings, which took them to Cleveland; the other 10 were picked up by the steamer F. C. Hart-well and were taken into Fairport.

MUSIC OF BARBARY STATES

Strange and Welrd Tunes Are Those Played by Men of the Great Desert.

"The four Barbary states are Morocco, Algeria, Tunis and Tripoli," is a lesson most of us learned in childhood, and most of us know very little more about them today.

Mrs. Mabel L. Todd comments on the wonderful mental quickness of the children of Tripoli, in "Tripoli the Mysterious." They acquire languages, she declares, without effort, and the street urchins use easily French, Italtan, and all the languages that are current in their narrow streets. strange music of the city, too, the weird chants, the cymbals, flageolets and queer stringed instruments, all deeply impressed the American visitor.

netimes at dawn, when roofs and minarets were dazzlingly white against the sapphire sky, while yet the labyrinthine streets at the bottoms of stucco canyons lay in twilight gray, strange men from the desert would stalk by, making uncanny music,

One of them, very tall and blacker than most, was dressed in a low necked, short-sleeved garment, greatly abbreviated as to skirts; playing melodies in a minor mode unknown to the West, and his stride was full of dignity well-nigh appalling.

The instrument slightly resembled a Scotch bagpipe decorated with barbarle strings of shells and beads, an inflated skin with primitive mouthplece, and at the opposite end two pointed projections like horns. His companion beat upon a curious little tomtom, and now and then sang a bloodcurdling chant.

Black boys followed, jumped, shouted, danced like wild creatures, excited beyond all bounds by this oddly compelling music, as the rhythm penetrated and seized their imagination. Although these men of mystery generally passed about sunrise, they sometimes went by in the night; once or twice the weird performances took place about two o'clock in the morning. The min-strels always walked with peculiar swiftness, intent upon the serious business in hand.

COMPLIMENT OF HIGH ORDER

Happy the Woman Who Could Truth fully Be Described as "Trailing the Beatitudes."

"There comes Mrs. MacGregortrailing the beatitudes," said a young man admiringly as a beautiful elderly woman came out of the hotel door and stopped to speak to a group on the steps.

The girl beside him turned in sur 'What a funny thing to say!' she cried with a laugh. "What do you mean by such a speech as that?" "Just look, and I'm sure you'll see, he answered softly. "Watch her face as she talks to those people."

For a moment the girl was silent, studying the face that was turned toward her as Mrs. MacGregor sank into a proffered chair. "I do understand," she whispered at length, turning back to her companion.

'Blessed are the pure in heart,' That's there isn't it?" answered the man quietly "and all the rest of them, too. I looked them up at once when I heard someone say that about her, and they're all there, and in her life, too-the merci and the peacemaking; and the hunge and thirst after righteousness most of all. She's the mother of a friend of mine, so I know her right well." "What a lovely thing to say about a woman!" mused the girl thoughtfully. "I thought it was funny at first, 'trailing the beatitudes,' but now I appre ciate it. The good priest dropped on his knees before her and prayed that she would have mercy.

"I have said the words," answered the queen, "and no power under heaven can make me unsay them."

Then she left the room, and Monaldeschi was left with the priest and the three executioners. He groveled on his knees in a sickening way, like Monmouth at the feet of King James, and implored the priest to make one more effort. So the priest went to Christina and begged for the wretched man's life, but she was adamant.

Official Report From West Virginia

Fred O. Blue, State Tax Commissioner of West Virginia, lias made public a statement covering two years the state Prohibition law has been in effect. In that time there has been a reduction of 50 per cent in crime and 75 per cent in drunkenness throughout the state. Mr. Blue's claims are based on figures received in official reports from more than 50 municipalities in the state which show that the year before the law went into effect there were 19,567 arrests, while during the first year after the law was passed, this number was reduced to 9,956, and the past year to 3,357.

Are You Posted on Leather Conditions?

Mothers, fathers and all who are interested in shoes, especially ladies' and children's wear. I made a lucky purchase over a year ago. I gave the agent an order for these shoes to be made for this fall shipment, although I was told about the advance in prices at that time. It was hardly believeable until the prices of today are compared, in which I have saved from 20 to 75c per pair in women's and misses' shoes. I am speaking in regards to the leather in this ad, not something that is supposed to fill the space. I positively have as good a line as was ever brought to this town, even when prices were lower. This order was given so long ago that I had forgotten about it and refused to take them from the depot until I was convinced by sincerity of agent who called here that I had purchased these goods in good faith. He was here in person and helped to mark these goods and I remembered the circumstances after seeing him.

If you are looking for childs', youths' and misses' school shoes, I can save you as stated from 20 to 75c a pair. These goods were bought direct from factory and hence the difference I would be obliged to pay from jobbers. This store is positively filled with late up-to-date shoes. I bought not only the most beautiful shoes in shape and lasts, but in all combinations, which under conditions is so hard to make attractive. Ladies, you will hardly believe until you see with your own eyes the grace and fitting qualities. From this on this store is going to make ladies' fine footwear a specialty I have ordered a full line of party pumps in patent and fine kid in assorted colors.

I wish to announce to the ladies of Grayling that I purchased a full line of party gowns in late shades. You will see them on exhibition in my window next Saturday and Sunday. I will announce it as soon as my pumps arrive.

TO THE MEN:

I have purchased 19 cases of Men's Rubbers, 24 pair in a case. I think I am prepared to carry the prices started until spring. Prices range from 79c

WET CAMPAIGN MEETING HAS SENSATIONAL ENDING.

Dry Campaign Manager Asks Permission to Speak and Talks Nearly an Hour.

C. W. Broeman, of Cincinnati, ad dressed a good sized audience Tues day night at the Opera house on the question of Home Rule and State wide prohibition.

He explained the meaning and work ings of Home Rule as indicated by the construction of that amendment as i will be presented to the voter. This seemed to be what the audience was most interested in, for many who were present went there for the express purpose of hearing it explained.

We have neither time nor space to devote to an extended report of Mr. Broman's address. There was little response to any of his utterances and only one time did he invoke applaus. Early in his talk he invited anyone who cared to ask questions to do so At the conclusion of his talk he again asked if there were any present who wished further explanation or wished to ask any questions.

C. E. Dowdell, campaign manager for the drys in the counties of Crawford, Otsego and Cheboygan, was present and went forward and asked permission to speak. Mr. Broeman gave him the privilege, stating that he would reply to him (Dowell.)

There wasn't any reply for Dowdell lost no ground in getting busy and after he got started there was no stopping him. He delved into the evils of the saloon, painting mental pictures of the dark side of the liquor traffic He talked for nearly an hour and was londly applauded. He peeled off his overcoat and later his coat, collar and glaasses.

The chairman protested, finally saying that he had said enough. Dow and that he intended to talk an hour longer. He just would not be interrupted, until finally a friend of the speaker urged him to quit and then he

By that time a large part of the audience had left and before Mr. Broman could reply to any of the things said by Dowdell, the whole crowd filed out

This was pretty tough on the wets for they had paid $20.00 for the use of the hall, paid for the advertising and other expenses and then the Drys epped in and had a dry talk free rom expense. There is little queson but that the larger portion of hose present at the meeting were in avor of state wide prohibition.

Local Boy Scouts Celebrate Anniversary. Every year the local Boy scouts, unler direction of their Scoulmaster L. . Bundgaard, hold a public exhibiion of the work that they have been doing during the year and last Friday ight was set aside for this anniversary. It was held at their headquarters in Danish gymnasium and was attended by quite a number of the parents and friends of the boys. A very nice program had been prepared consisting of songs, drills, gymnastics, contests and games, and many very interesting talks were given. Prof. A. A. Ellsworth addressed the young people on the subject of "Guards." Rev. A. Mitchell spoke, taking for his theme "Challenge of Christianity to strong young men" and after this Scoutmaster Bundgaard gave a short talk. During the evening P. G. Zalsman acted as chairman and made some very good remarks to young and old. All of the talks were very interesting and also instructive. After this followed a gymnastic exhibition and the work done in this was excellent, and much credit is due their coutmaster for its success.

During the year many bird houses have been built, and on this evening they were sold at auction. There were some fine specimens of handiwork. Refreshments were served late in the evening to all, by the Boy Scouts, and ended one of the most pleasant gatherings the boys have had.

I come to you with my Road Proposition and on this I ask your support as it is of vital importance to the development of our district.

First: That the $5,000,000 appropriation made by the Federal Government to the State of Michigan for the improving of Rural Route Roads be divided equally among the townships and counties of the state according to the miles of rural routes in those townships and counties, so that the POOR townships and counties receive equal benefit with the wealthier counties.

Second: That instead of bonding the individual townships and counties for their proportion of monies for the building of the State Reward Roads, that the state loan them money at 4 per cent interest and it be repaid on a refund principle, the same as under the Farmers Rural Credits Law, so that the settlers of today will not have to stand the heavy burden of road tax, but is divided so that the man who comes in ten and twenty years pays his equal portion of the road tax of which he receives an equal benefit.

Third: That the state of Michigan take over, build, pay for and maintain the now so called State Highway Trunkline Roads. These roads will be used by the state at large, the maintainence of these roads will be great and the expense of same should not be borne by the people through townships and counties which they pass.

We are all vitally interested in this proposition. I am fighting to see that we get it. Its for everybody's interest in the District. Let everybody push. I must have every vote possible. You will find my name on the Democratic ticket for State Senator. Put the X before my name if you think I am right. Let not party politics enter into the road proposition which is of such vital importance to us all.

PROHIBITION MEANS-

50,000 Jobless Men $62,000,000 in Wages Lost to Workers $30,000,000 in Property Confiscated $1,964,000 in Revenues Destroyed

$1,120,000 Added Taxes for Home Owners to Pay

Prohibition Means Hypocrisy, Blind Tigers, Law-Breakers and Crime

PROHIBITION, THE KIND PROPOSED FOR MICHIGAN WOULD MEAN:

Train Loads of Intoxicants Coming Into Michigan from Ohio, Illinois, Wisconsin and New York States

Michigan Would Obtain Intoxicants,—Michigan Would Pay for Them—Blind Tigers Would Sell Them—Bootleggers Would Handle Intoxicants Illegally, and—

Millions of Dollars Would be Spent Outside the Confines of the State

The Dry Amendment Does Not Prohibit the Shipping or Receiving of Intoxicating Liquors

The Dry Amendment viciously provides for the Confiscation of property valued at $30,000,000 and the throwing of 50,000 jobless men into the labor market.

85 NEW MEMBERS TO BE INI-TIATED INTO MOOSE LODGE.

Degree Team From St. Charles Comes Monday to Confer Initiation.

A final ending to a membership camaign by the members of the Loyal Order of Moose, closed last Monday night with an increase in members of ship of 220 in the local order.

The special efforts to increase the nembership of the lodge commenced about six weeks ago. Two teams were organized, one team, called the Whites" was captained by Nelson Corwin, and another, the "Reds" was captained by Wm. H. Cody. The whites won out by bringing in 46 new members, reds having 39 to their cre-

The applications have all been balloted upon and now all that remains to do to make these applicants full fledged members is to confer the initiation of the order upon them. Grayling has a good degree team, but in order to add interest to the initiatory ceremonies, St. Charles lodge will come here next Monday on a special rain, bringing with them their own Juvenile band, and their crack degree eam, which will do the work,

The members will meet at the lodge ooms in time to form for a big street parade at 7:00 o'clock. This will be ed by the St. Charles Juveni e band. This is going to be a big day for Grayling lodge and the officers and committees on arrangements are going to make the occasion one long to be remembered. Temple theatre has been engaged for the occasion and it is here that the lodge work will be done. This will be followed by a banquet in the Odd Fellows dining room. A social evening of speeches, music and smoker will be held in the lodge and club rooms during the balance of the evening and will last until the Michigan Central conductor calls "All board" for St. Charles.

Among the new members to be admitted at the meeting next Mouday night are some of the best and most influential citizens of Grayling, Frederic, Roscommon, Lovells and other nearby places.

Annual Meeting of Board of Supervisors.

The regular annual meeting of the County board of Supervisors was held at the Court house last week. All supervisors were present, as follows: M. A. Bates, chairman, Grayling; Charles Craven, Frederic; Ed. Chalker, Maple Forest; Elmer Head, South Branch; J. E. Kellogg, Lovells and rank Love, Beaver Creek.

It was a busy week for the board, out they got to work at once and went hru with the business without any nitches, and completed all that was aid out for them in just five days. This is a record to be proud of.

Much credit is due to County Clerk Niederer for the dispatch with which he work was carried out. Everyhing was in readiness for the memfurnished Chairman Bates with a complete program of every matter, that vas to be acted upon, and in a large majority of the affairs, the reports had already been typewritten and prepared ready to be checked over by their espective committees and signatures attached. No needless work was done and nothing left undone.

There is another record for Craw ford county to be proud of and that is, that there are no outstanding debts and no bonded indebtedness what-soever. This is due to the splendid management of the county affairs. The official report of the proceedings will be published in the Avalanche

Just at that moment Duane felt an almost inappreciable movement of the adobe wall which supported him, He could scarcely credit his senses the rattle inside Longstreth's room was mingling with little dull thuds of falling dirt. The adobe wall, merely dried mud, was crumbling. Duane distinctly felt a tremor pass through it. Then the blood gushed back to his heart.

"What in the hell!" exclaimed Longstreth. I smell dust," said Lawson, sharp-

That was a signal for Duane to drop down from his perch, yet despite his care he made a noise. "Did you hear a step?" queried Longstreth.

No one answered. But a heavy piece of the adobe wall fell with Duane heard it crack, felt it

Then a section of the wall fell in-ward with a crash. Duane began to squeeze his body through the narrow passage toward the patio. "Hear him!" yelled Lawson. "This

"No, he's going that way," yelled Longstreth.

The tramp of heavy boots lent Duane the strength of desperation. He was not shirking a fight, but to be cornered like a trapped coyote was another matter. He almost tore his clothes off in that passage. The dust nearly stifled him. When he burst into the patio it was not an instant too But one deep gasp of breath revived him and he was up, gun in hand, running for the outlet into the court. Thumping footsteps turned him back. While there was a chance to get away he did not want to fight. ning into the patio from the other end. He stole along, and coming to a door, without any idea of where it might lead, he softly pushed it open a little way and slipped in.

A low cry greeted Duane. The room was light. He saw Ray Long-streth sitting on her bed in her dressing-gown. With a warning gesture to door. It was a heavy door without bolt or bar, and when Duane had shut it he felt safe only for the moment Then he gazed around the room. There was one window with blind closely drawn. She was terrified because she believed he meant to kill her, or do worse, probably worse. Duane realized he must have looked pretty hard and fierce bursting into her room with that big gun in hand.

The way she searched Duane's face with doubtful, fearful eyes hurt him. "Listen. I didn't know this was your room. I came here to get away -to save my life. I was pursued. was spying on your father and his They heard me, but did not see me. They don't know who was listen-They're after me now."

Her eyes changed from blank gulfs to dilating, shadowing, quickening windows of thought.

Then she stood up and faced Duane with the fire and intelligence of a woman in her eyes.

"Tell me now. You were spying on my father?"

Briefly Duane told her what had happened before he entered her room, omitting a terse word as to the character of the men he had watched.

"My God! So it's that? I knew something was terribly wrong herewith him-with the place-the people And right off I hated Floyd Lawson. Oh, it 'll kill me if-if- It's so much worse than I dreamed. What shall

"I'll have to get out of here," whispered Duane.

"Wait," she replied. "Didn't you say they were hunting for you?" "They sure are," he returned, grim

"Oh, then you mustn't go. They might shoot you. Stay. If we hear them you can hide. I'll turn out the light. I'll meet them at the door. You can trust me. Wait till all quiets down, if we have to wait till morn

"Up yet, Ray?" came Longstreth's clear voice, too strained, too eager to be natural.

"No. I'm in bed reading. Good night," instantly replied Miss Longstreth, so calmly and naturally that Duane marveled at the difference between man and woman. Then she motioned for Duane to hide in the closet. He slipped in but the door would not close altogether.

"How? Tell me." "I overheard Floyd say that men were coming to-night to arrange a meeting for my father at a rendezvo near Ord. Father did not want to go. Floyd taunted him with a name."

"What name?" queried Duane. "It was Cheseldine."

"Cheseldine! My God! Miss Long streth, why did you tell me that?" "What difference does that make?"
"Your father and Cheseldine are our and the same," whilspered Duane hoarsely.

"I gathered so much myself," she re-plied, miserably, "But Longstreth is father's real name."

Duane felt so stunned that he could not speak at once. It was the girl's part in this tragedy that weakened secret Duane realized perfectly that he loved her. The emotion was like a great flood.

"Miss Longstreth, all this seems so unbelievable," he whispered. "Cheseldine is a rustler chief I've come out here to get. He's only a name. Your father is the real man. I've sworn to get him. I'm bound by more than law or oaths. I can't break what binds me. And I must disgrace you wreck your life! Why, Miss Longstreth, I believe I-I love you. It's all come in a rush. Duane opened the door and stealthily stole out through the corridor to the court. But long after he had framped out into the open there was a lump in his throat and an ache in CHAPTER XXII.

Duane had decided to go to Ord and try to find the rendezvous where Longstreth was to meet his men These men Duane wanted even more than their leader. It was Poggin who needed to be found and stopped Poggin and his right-hand men!

The night of the day before he express train going east, was held up by train-robheries, the Wells-Fargo messenger killed over his safe, the mail-clerk wounded, the bags carried away. The engine No. 6 came into town minus even a tender, and en-gineer and fireman told conflicting stories. A posse of railroad men and citizens, led by a sheriff Duane suspected was crooked, was made up be fore the engine steamed back to pick up the rest of the train. Duane had been cudgeling his mind to find; and, acting upon it, he mounted his horse again and left Bradford unobserved.

He rode at an easy trot most of the night, selected an exceedingly rough, roundabout, and difficult cours to Ord, hid his tracks with the skill of a long-hunted fugitive, and arrived there with his horse winded and covered with lather. It added considerable to his arrival that the man Duane remembered as Fletcher and several others saw him come in the back way through the lots and jump

Duane gathered encouragement from that chorus of coarse laughter. "Wal, if them tourists ain't too durned snooky the hoss 'll be safe n the 'dobe shack back of Bill's here. feed thar, too, but you'll hev to rus-

Duane led Bullet to the place indiated, had care of his welfare, and eft him there. Upon returning to of men had been added to by others Without comment Duane walked along the edge of the road, and wher ever one of the tracks of his horse howed he carefully obliterated it. This procedure was attentively watched by Fletcher and his com panions.

"Wal, Dodge," remarked Fletcher, as Duane returned, "thet's safer 'n

Duane's reply was a remark as oquacious as Fletcher's, to the effect that a long, slow, monotonous ride was conducive to thirst. ioined him, unmistakably friendly, But Knell was not there, and most assuredly not Poggin. Fletcher was no common outlaw, but, whatever his if I ability, it probably lay in execution of orders. Apparently at that time these men had nothing to do but drink and lounge around the tavern. Duane set out to make himself agree able and succeeded. All morning men came and went, until, all told, Duane calculated he had seen at least fifty. Toward the middle of the afternoon a voung fellow burst into the saloon

"Posse!" From the scramble to get outdoors Duane judged that word and the ensuing action was rare in Ord. "What's all this?" muttered Fletchr, as he gazed down the road at a dark, compact bunch of horses and "Fust time I ever seen thet n Ord! Wish Phil was here or Poggy. Now all you gents keep quiet. I'll do he talkin'."

The posse entered the town, trotted up on the dusty horses, and halted in a hunch before the tavern. The party consisted about twenty men, all heavily armed, and evidently in charge of a clean-cut, lean-limbed rowboy. Dunne experienced considersheriff who he had understood was o lead the posse. Perhaps he was out in another direction with a differ-

At this short, dry response and the way he strode leisurely out before the osse Duane found himself modifying is contempt for Fletcher. The outaw was different now. "Fletcher, we've tracked a man .c

His response was what Dunne had xpected from his manner, and evilently the cowboy took it as a matter of course. He turned to the others of the posse, entering into a low con sultation. Evidently there was diffe-ence of opinion, if not real dissension

"Didn't I tell ye this was a wildgoose chase, comin' way out here?" protested an old hawk-faced rancher "Them hoss tracks we follored ain't like any of them we seen at the water-tank where the train was held

Some of the posse sided with the owboy leader and some with the old cattleman. Finally the young leader lisgustedly gathered up his bridle.

"Aw, hell! Thet sheriff shoved you off this trail. Mebbe he hed reason! Savvy thet? If I hed a bunch of cowboys with me—I tell you what, I'd take chance and clean up this hole!"

All the while Jim Fletcher stoo quietly with his hands in his pockets. "Guthrie, I'm shore treasurin' up your friendly talk," he said. The menace was in the tone, not the con-ent of his speech. "You can-an' be damned to you Fletcher!" called Guthrie, as the orses started.

Fletcher, standing out alone before the others of his clan, watched the osse out of sight.

"Luck fer you-all thet Poggy wasn't iere," he said, as they disappeared. Then with a thoughtful mien he trode up on the porch and led Duane away from the others into the bar-When he looked into Duane's face it was somehow an entirely changed scrutiny.

"Dodge, wher'd you hide the stuff? I reckon I git in on this deal, seein' I staved off Guthrie."

Duane played his part. Here was his opportunity, and like a figer after prey he seized it. First he coolly eyed the outlaw and then disclaimed my knowledge whatever of the train robbery other than Fletcher had heard himself. Then at Fletcher's persist ence and admiration and increasing show of friendliness he laughed oc-casionally and allowed himself to swell with pride, though still denying. Later, when Duane started up anouncing his intention to get his horse and make for camp out in the brush Fletcher seemed grievously offended

"Why don't you stay with me? I've got a comfortable 'dobe over here. Didn't I stick by you when Guthrie an' his bunch come up? Supposin' I hedn't showed down a cool hand to him? You'd be swingin' somewheres now. I tell you, Dodge, it ain't square.'

"I'll square it. I pay my debts," replied Duane. "Eut I can't put up here all night. If I belonged to the gang it 'd be different.'

"What gang?" asked Fletcher, blunt-

> Late in the morning he returned to Ord. If Jim Fletcher tried to disguise his surprise, the effort was a failure. Certainly he had not expected to see Duane again. Duane allowed himself a little freedom with Fletcher, an at itude hitherto lacking.

> That afternoon a horseman rode i rom Bradford, an outlaw evidently well known and liked by his fellows and Duane heard him say, before he could possibly have been told the train-robber was in Ord, that the loss of money in the hold-up was slight. Like a flash Duane saw the luck of this report. He pretended not to have

In the early twilight at an opportune moment he called Fletcher to him, and, linking his arm within the outlaw's, he drew him off in a stroll to log bridge spanning a little gully. Here after gazing around, he took out a roll of bills, spread it out, split it equally, and without a word handed one half to Fletcher. With clumsy fingers Fletcher ran through the roll. "Five hundred!" he exclaimed "Dodge, thet's damn handsome of you considerin' the job wasn't-"Considerin' nothin'," interrupted Duane. "I'm makin' no reference to a job here or there. You did me i good turn. I split my pile. If thet doesn't make us pards, good turns an' money ain't no use in this coun try." Fletcher was won.

The two men spend much time to gether. Duane made up a short ficti ious story about himself that satis fied the outlaw, only it drew forth laughing jest upon Duane's modesty. For Fletcher did not hide his belief that this new partner was a man o achievements. Knell and Poggin, and then Cheseldine himself, would be persuaded of this fact, so Fletche oasted. He had influence, He would use it. He thought he pulled a stroke with Knell. But nobody on earth, not even the boss, had any influence on Poggin. Poggin was concentrated ice part of the time: all the rest he vas bursting hell. But Poggin loved a horse. He never loved anything black horse Bullet. Cheseldine was already won by Duane's monumenta nerve; otherwise he would have killed

Little by little the next few days Duane learned the points he longed to know; and how indelibly they etched themselves in his memory! Cheseldine's hiding-place was on the far slope of Mount Ord, in a deep, high-walled valley. He always went there just before a contemplated job, where ants. Then while they executed he basked in the sunshine before one or ants. nother of the public places he owned He was there in the Ord den now, getting ready to plan the biggest job yet. It was a bank-robbery; but where, Fletcher had not as yet been advised. Then when Duane had pumped the now amenable outlaw of all details pertaining to the present he gathered data and facts and places covering a period of ten years Fletcher had been with Cheseldine. And herewith was unfolded a history so dark in its bloody regime, so incredible in its brazen daring, so appalling in its proof of the outlaw's sweep and grasp of the country from Pecos to Rio Grande, that Duane was stunned. Compared to this Cheseldine of the Big Bend. to this rancher, stock-buyer, cattle speculator, property-holder, all the outlaws Dunne had ever known sank into insignificance. The power of the man stunned Duane; the strange fidelity given him stunned Dunne; the intricate inside working of his great system was equally stunning. when Duane recovered from that the old terrible passion to kill consumed him, and it raged flercely and it could not be checked. If that red-handed Poggin, if that cold-eyed, dead-faced Knell had only been at Ord! of time got what he hoped was the upper hand of himself.

CHAPTER XXIII.

Again inaction and suspense dragged at Duane's spirit.

But one day there were signs of the ong quiet of Ord being broken. A messenger strange to Duane rode in a secret mission that had to do with Fletcher. Duane was present in the tavern when the fellow arrived saw the few words whispered, but did not hear them. Fletcher turned white with anger or fear, perhaps both, and he cursed like a madman. The mes-senger rode away off to the west. This west mystified and fascinated Mount Ord. After the messenger left Fletcher grew silent and surly. It became clear now that the other outlaws of the camp feared him, kept out of his way. Duane let him alone, yet closely watched him.

Perhaps an hour after the messenger had left, not longer, Fletcher man- geta de banan'.'

ifestly arrived at some decision, and went to his shack and returned. To Duane the outlaw looked in shape both to ride and to fight. He gave orders for the men in camp to keep closed until he returned. Then he mounted

"Come here, Dodge," he called. Duane went up and laid a hand or the pommel of the saddle. Fletcher walked his horse, with Duane beside him, till they reached the log bridge when he halted.

"Dodge, I'm in bad with Knell," h said. "An' it 'pears I'm the cause of friction between Knell an' Poggy Knell never had any use fer me, but Poggy's been square, if not friendly The boss had a big deal on, an' here it's been held up because of this scrap. He's waitin' over there on the mountain to give orders to Knell of Poggy, an' neither one's showin' up I've got to stand in the breach, an ain't enjoyin' the prospects.'

"What's the trouble about. Jim?" isked Duane.

"Reckon it's a little about you Dodge," said Fletcher, dryly. "Knel hadn't any use fer you that day

The shiftless owner of a worthless old horse, Joel Turner, had been in of feeding the animal from the cribs of his more enterprising neighbors, until the patience of his victims was completely exhausted They had caught him in the act of helping himself to corn a number of times, and so there was plenty of evidence to convict him; but on account of his family and his vindictive disposition, no one wanted to prose cute him. One day, when Joel's neighbors vere discussing the situation, someon suggested that it would be an act of mercy—which would also solve their and put it out of its misery.

This suggestion the conference adopted. They subscribed a purse of $10, and sent a committee of one to buy the horse. Here the plan was threatened with failure. The committee reported that Joel did not want to sell. After a few days, Jesse who thought himself something of a diplomat, undertook to negotiate the sale, and to his surprise found Joel not only willing but anxious to sell the

BIG GAME STILL PLENTIFUL

No Reason to Believe That the Moose Is Being Destroyed in the United States.

With the great amount of wild territory yet remaining in this country, with northern Maine and New Hampshire, where the forests are dense and extensive, and the great expanse of the West, where game is still supposed to abound, it is a little surprising to learn that hunters in considerable umbers go every year to New Brunswick. The big game season is now or in that province, and moose, deer and caribon may be taken. One reason why hunters go there is that for the present the shooting of moose is prohibited in Maine. The moose is a mi-gratory animal, and such a decrease n its numbers as has been noticed in Maine does not necessarily indicate that the herds are being destroyed. Cow moose and caribou may not be taken in New Brunswick, but the license provides that one bull moose, one bull caribou and two deer may be taken. The hunting season poor last year, as there were long periods of wet and stormy weather, but military enlistments reduced the number of native hunters. There were 369 game licenses taken out last year by Americans from 23 states and 72 bird licenses were taken by residents of eight states.

WOMAN HAD TRUE CHARITY

Refusal to Judge Others Harshly Proves Possession of the Highest Christian Character.

There died a short time ago a woman who never occupied, or aspired to occupy, a conspicuous position in the world but who was beloved by all who knew her. NATURAL FOR THEM TO CRY

Adults, as a Rule, Pay Too Much Attention to the Bawling of the Youngsters.

There are too many youngsters who know that they can get anything if they cry long enough for it. Then there are children who cry over anything, whether crying is justified or not. It is quite natural for children to magnify every disappointment and to make a huge outcry over everything that displeases Parents should remember this and discount a large percentage of this bawling. Most adults are too easily annoyed by a child's crying. They think he ought to control himself, and attach too much importance to his lack of restraint in this regard.

Of course, it is very probable that there is physical cause for the child's crying, in that case, the cause should be found out as quickly as possible The chances are that a normal child, say three years old or over, with plenty of muscular activities and games who Is healthy looking, eats and sleeps well and otherwise good-natured, does not cry because of temper. There must be some physical reason. There must be irritation somewhere. It may be his teeth. SUMMARY OF IMPORTANT HAP PENINGS IN FAR OFF NORTHLAND.

Resume of the Most Important Events in Sweden, Norway and Denmark-Of Interest to the Scandinavians in America.

SWEDEN.

American athletes carried off the lon's share of the honors on the openng day of the track events at the studium at Stockholm. Competing igninst athletes of the Scandinavian countries, the Americans captured three races—the 100 and 400-meter runs and the 800-meter relay race; In the 400-meter run, Ted Meredith, the quarter-mile American national champlon, defeated J. Bolin, the holder of the 800-meter Swedish record, the winner's time being 40 7-10 seconds. Amercans took first, second and third places in the 100-meter events, the vinner being Joe Loomis of Chicago. The high jump was won by the Swede Kullerstrand, Loomis being second and Fred Murray of Chicago, third. Sum-marles: 100 meters run (109 yards 2 inches), won by Joe G. Loomis, Chicago; second, Andy Ward, Chicago; third, Bob Simpson. Time, 109-10 seconds. 400 meters run (437 yards 16 inches), won by Ted Meredith of Philadelphia; second, J. Bolin of Sweden. Time, 49 7-10 seconds. 800 meters re lay race—American team, composed of Joe Loomis, Fred Murray, Simpson and Andy Ward, defeated the Scandinavian team. Time, 1 minute 30 2-5 seconds. High jump won by Kullerstrand of Sweden, with a jump of 173 centimeters (6 feet); second, Joe Loomis, 180 centimeters: third, Fred Murray, 175 centimeters. As matters stand now there is pledged by prominent sport followers in Sweden enough money to send a team of about fifteen men to the Unit ed States. It is felt that should the invitation of the New York Athletic club to the Swedes be repented next spring, as seems likely now, there will be a popular subscription ample to mance a team of twice the size of the one planned for last spring. The one factor which may "crab" the whole affair, as it did last spring, is the military situation. If no complications are turned up in the meantime the Swedes will stand ready to organize a team to invade the U.S. A. Sweden, like the United States, is enjoy ing unheard-of prosperity these days and the task of raising funds for the proposed 1917 invusion of the United n ordinary times.

NORWAY.

A young man from Arendal who had detained in England to be sent to the been in India and Australia a good deal of the time. He took a notion to visit Europe without any idea of getting into trouble on account of the war. When he came to England he was soon made to understand what it meant to have no papers to prove his Norwegian citizenship. He tried to get the necessary papers from Norway, but for some reason he did not get them as soon as he expected, and so he was rushed to the Belgian front.

It is more than a year since people n Bergen raised $9,000 for a military peroplane to be kept in that city. People began to wonder why it took so long to get the airship, and an explanation had to be furnished. The mahine had been made. But it could not be used, not in that locality, at any rate, on account of its peculiar air currents. Now those who raised the $9,000 demand that the govern ment furnish an airship that can be used in and around Bergen.

The prosperity which the Norwegian are enjoying is cropping out in many vays. The Bergen Tidende gives ar account of a wedding ring which one f its representatives had been fortunate enough to get a glimpse of. It was a solid gold affair weighing 45 grams and costing about $25. It was thick that the lady who had been favored with it could not wear it when he had anything to do, for it kept her fingers so far apart that they stood out pretty much like the spokes of a wheel.

A curious rule is in force in the army. Those who deal in liquor are prohibited from serving whisky, wine states will be a much easier one than and beer to men of the army unless he is a section hand or a general manthey carry a special permit. The innkeepers of Bergen simplified the rule by refusing to sell to anyone wearing a military uniform. Those who carry special permits to drink are greatly wrought up over this matter, and it is proposed to furnish cards to those members of the army who are entitled to drink.

ROMANCES OF RAII

Men Who Rose to Head Great American Railroads.

Some Went Up From Ranks and Some by Way of Learning-More Wonderful Than Some Arabian Nights Tales.

Not yet are the days of romancing assed. They are making more wonderful romances under your very eyes than they used to make in the days of Bagdad and the Arabian Nights. What son of Mustafa by rubbing a lamp could be elevated more wonderthan a grimy locomotive fireman who opens a book, and presently finds himself head of a great railroad?

Take Daniel Willard, for instance

He is president of the Baltimore & Ohio railroad now. Mr. Willard is a great executive. He is an art con-noisseur, a musician and a scholar besides. His collection of portraits of Napoleon is one of the best in the world. His interest in men of affairs is world-wide. Some time ago, when he was in the midst of negotiating a $110,000,000 expenditure for improvements of the Baltimore & Ohio, he be gan to study French.

It is only a few years ago that Willard was fireman on an old Vermont road that is now part of the Boston & Maine. Willard was a locomotive fireman, that's all. But one day he found a book that interested him, in spite of its forbidding title. It is "Welling-ton's Economics of Railroad Locations." Willard bought it. He tucked it be neath the cushion of his seat in the engine cab, and when he wasn't keeping up steam in the boiler head he was reading about railroad economics. It gave him a wholly new view of railroading. The rest you can read.

"Fred" Underwood, now president of the Erie, the most jovial railroad presi dent of all, was the conductor of Willard's train. Underwood was coming along fast then-so fast that pretty soon he was Willard's boss—"Mr. Underwood" to Willard. But they became close friends, and each recognized the other's worth. Some years later Mr. Underwood was in line ollowed the sen for many years was the presidency of the Erie. Then the chance came, and almost the first man Belgian front as a soldier. He had he called to the road was Willard as vice president. The two men are closer chums than ever now.

With the exception of a few every one has climbed the ladder from the lower rung. One could almost count the college-bred men on the fingers of his two hands. And Louis W. Hill, head of the Great Northern, is practically the only one who inherited a big railroading job to start with. That was as vice president under his father, the late James J. Hill.

C. P. Markham, president of the Illinois Central, prominent socially as well as financially in Chicago, began his career as a section hand-a common laborer-on the Santa Fe, in Kansas City, then one of the toughest railroad yards in the country. He is remarked today as one of the most dap per-looking of these powerful railroad men. No one looking at him or study ing him closely would say he was other than the son of a rich man who had all the frills of a course at a leading university.

There's E. P. Ripley, president of the Atchison, Topeka & Santa Fe. Years ago a young man named Ripley went to work as a clerk in the traffic office of the Boston & Maine. But his stay there was not long. Pretty soon someone higher up spotted him as a coming railroad chief and gave him a job as general manager of the Chicago, Burlington & Quincy And when the Santa Fe was reorgan ized E. P. Ripley assumed the presidency. His friends celebrated his seventieth birthday last year in Chicago, and the gathering was one of the most

Then there is Fairfax Harrison, Virginia, president of the Southern railway, one of the few college men in the executives' group. He is an emi-nent lawyer and a Greek scholar, besides a leading railway executive. Some time ago he translated Cato's "Farm Management," considered by many scholars as a literary gem. But then, he isn't altogether to blame for that. It has been traditional among the first families of Vir ginia that their sons must go to col-It only goes to show that it is the caliber of the man which counts, in railroading as in everything else.

Chinese Advancement.

Forty years ago China's first locomo tive killed a man who was trespassing on the track. Promptly the people executed judgment on the little seven mile road. The rails were torn up. The locomotive was sold. The road was no more. Now there are 6,000 miles of railroad in China; it is in prosperous condition and additions are being made to the mileage every year. China will yet rival the foremost countries of Europe in the extent of her railroads and the profits from them. The new China gives promise of becoming a nation.

An Engineering Journal Suggests the Feasibility of "Automobilizing" the Railroads.

Motor trucks are already "stealing" nuch of the short-haul freight traffic. Why not automobilize the railroads? Because Carranza would not permi American troops to use Mexican rail way equipment, some genius in our army temporarily transformed motor trucks into railroad rolling stock by fastening detachable steel flanges to the motor-truck wheels. Thus the trucks were driven over the railroads where there were railroads available and over dirt roads when no railroads were available. The change from a rail vehicle to a dirt-road vehicle is quickly made, and thus the problem of automobilizing one railrond system was speedily effected in part.

Innumerable rail lines carry only few trains daily, and the trainloads are not great at best. There is every reason to believe that much of the freight traffic over such lines could be more cheaply handled by motor trucks adapted to run on rails as well as or

May not the pressing and perplex ing problems of furnishing adequate terminal facilities in large cities be solved by automobilizing the terminals?

Why will it not be economic to transfer nearly all freight from cars to motor trucks outside the limits of large cities, run the trucks into the cities on rails, remove their tempo-rary wheel flanges, and thus enable them to run over paved streets to their destination?

If a soil eight to ten feet in depth, uch as we find in our river bottoms and along the Arcata Bottom, is superior to soil 10 to 12 inches deep, then ultivation from 16 to 18 inches deep Catarrhal Deafness Cannot Be is equally superior to cultivation from to 6 inches deep. This is a proposi tion which cannot be denied and which is being amply proved all the time, especially in the climate of California where it is necessary to pulyerize the soil deeply in order to give the root action of the plant opportunity to extend down sufficiently deep to reach a sufficiently supply of moisture to carry it thru the dry season. This ability to cultivate deeply is one of the strong points of the modern farmer tractor Every one who has anything to do with the soil ought to know that plant food must be distributed throont all parts of the soil which are reached by plant roots in order to produce the best crops and it must be put into the soil in such condition as will make it available for plant consumption. In shallow cultivation, putting into the soil nitrogenous plant foods and plow ing them only three or four inches deep, is simply a waste of good fuel, as the action of the sun, in connection with frequent shallow cultivations rapidly evaporates the nitrogen away. On the other hand, if the nitrogenous nanure is put into the ground and plowed under deeply, say from 10 to 16 inches, and in this process of plow ng thoroly distributes the nitroger thruout the entire mass of cultivated soil, it is only necessary to keep up the continuous surface cultivation producing the well known dust mulch three or four inches in depth, which arrests evaporation, retaining the nirogenous manures underneath the mulch where the plants can get at them and assimilate them.

To my mind this is the whole secret f successful culture of the soil in California-deep cultivation-as deep as you can go with ordinary power machinery-16 to 18 inches if you can. When the Cottage Gardens prepares a piece of ground for the nursery busi less or bulb farm it cultivates the soil rom 14 to 16 inches deep and from 6 o 7 times before the ground is conidered ready for planting. After the econd cultivation, that is after the irst plowing 12 inches deep and a harowing with the disc, two to four tons of lime are sown. A second plowing and harrowing thoroly incorporates this material into the soil, where it is allowed to remain for ten days or two weeks, then a ton of ground bone, or ralf ton of phosphate is spread upo the land by means of the lime spreader and a third plowing and cultivation s given. This means three plowings, each followed by cultivation with the disc. After this the final harrowing s given before planting. Immediately after the first plowing and harrow-ing, the land leveller puts the surface f the ground in such shape so as to provide proper surface drainage. This peration should be performed before any fertilizer or lime is put upon the
